1. In order to strengthen the boundary defenses along the Heilung and Ussuri Rivers, the Soviets have taken the following steps:
  - a. To guard against the infiltration of Chinese secret agents, army watch dogs have been placed along every mile of the boundary line.
  - b. Underground forts and trenches have been built along the banks of the Heilung and Ussuri Rivers.
  - c. When Soviet and "foreign" agents cross the boundary line, their eyes are covered with bandages.
  - d. There are 16 tractors to each farm group in the eastern part of the USSR. These can be easily converted to tanks when deemed necessary.
  - e. Foodstuffs have been stored in underground warehouses in the Wula Mountains (烏拉山) [?]. The supply is sufficient for 15 years.
  - f. There are 10 modern-equipped Mongolian brigades on the eastern fringe of the Mongolian People's Republic.
  - g. The Soviet Staff Department [?] and the Chinese Communists have agreed to build secret fortifications in the Inner Hsingan Mountains.
  - h. A squadron of patrol boats which was on the Sungari River before the Mukden Incident was taken over by the Japanese and, after 15 August 1945, by the Soviets. These boats are now stationed on the upper reaches of the Heilung, Sungari and Ussuri Rivers.
  - i. Training and weapons have been given to the pro-Soviet Chinese local troops in the following border cities, but Chinese Communists are not included in the troops:
